DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS ARE TO FOLLOW

William H. Squires, a chief carpenter in the navy, attached to the department of yards and docks at the navy yard, had his family trouble aired at the police station on Monday, when Mrs. Squires and her nineteen-year old daughter, charged him with living with another woman. Mrs. Squires, who was here for some weeks in March and April, returned to her home in Philadelphia and she came Monday, and, it is said, found that her husband had been living with another woman since her departure. At any rate, she charged him with it, and there was a lively scene in the police station when Mrs. Squires met her husband and his family, and the argument became so heated that Deputy Marshal Hurley had to take a hand in the game. It is said that divorce proceedings will follow the scene of yesterday.

PEPPERRELL AND DECATUR FOR HALL OF FAME

William Pepperrell and Stephen Decatur are among the 206 names of native born Americans made public on Saturday, April 30, as nominated for the Hall of Fame. Forty names are to be chosen from the 206, by the ninety-six electors. The vote must be in by Oct. 1, and he announced as soon as the count is made. There were 28 famous Americans of foreign birth nominated to fill the four places allotted, and for the ten places to be filled by the names of famous American women, 30 women have been nominated. This will be the third election since the institution has been founded.

We hope the names of William Pepperrell and Stephen Decatur will be among the forty names chosen.

PAPER MILL STOREHOUSE IS CLEARED

The Cocheco department of the Pacific mills of Dover, which has for the past year or more used the big storehouse of the Colonial Paper company at Freeman's Point for storing its cotton, etc., will today clear everything from the building and ship the same to its own plant at Dover.

MRS. MARY PLUMPTON

Mrs. Mary Plumpton died this morning at her home, No. 1 Pine street.

She was the widow of Thomas Plumpton, who was many years a blacksmith at the navy yard and the Boston and Maine shops.

She leaves one daughter and a large number of sorrowing friends.

AT NAVY YARD

New Hampshire to be Here Longer

Men Coming Back from Furloughs

More Time on the New Hampshire. The time for completing the repairs on the U. S. S. New Hampshire which was formerly set for June 4, has been extended to June 11.

Another Ship to be Sold

Bids will be opened at the navy department June 1 for the purchase of the United States steamer Hornet, now at the Norfolk navy yard. The Hornet formerly the yacht of H. M. Flagler, recently was stricken from the list of vessels of the navy. She was purchased during the Spanish-American war.

Fire Drill Today

Fire quarters were sounded from Box 33 today and the trial of the yard fire department apparatus was very satisfactory.

Sporting Matters of the New Hampshire

The New Hampshire boys are already talking football and intend to have a bang-up good team for the coming season. They have several new faces in the line-up among which is E. F. Lindstrom, lately with the team of the U. S. S. West Virginia, one of the fastest men on the gridiron in the service. Lindstrom is known as an all around athlete and as much famous as an oarsman as he is a football player. He will make a most valuable man at the oar in the racing crew of the big ship.

Calling Them Back

Several machinists, machinists' helpers and general helpers, who have been on furloughs owing to lack of work, have been recalled for duty.

A Few Going On

One first class pattern maker and two riveters were called by the labor board today.

To Dance at Exeter

Miss Bella McWilliams, daughter of foreman laborer, James McWilliams, of the yard, will give the Dutch dance at Exeter tonight, where a fair opens in that town.

Not Up to Requirements

A carload of lumber recently purchased at Buffalo for general use at the station has been condemned and ordered sent back to the shippers.

Extra Expense of Retired Officers

Of the seventy-eight retired naval officers on active duty a number are to be relieved in the near future, according to a plan under consideration by the navy department. This is due to the fact that the number of officers available, especially for shore duty of a professional character, will increase during this year. Statistics

New Hampshire Artists

The baseball team of the U. S. S. New Hampshire are taking out a few of the kinks since arriving in port and in a few days the club will be ready to go after some of the fast teams in this vicinity and will delight in meeting the naval prison, army boys or the Marietta men on the diamond.

ENTHUSIASM AT BOSTON

Over the Return of Our City's Sons and Daughters

A good idea of what interest is manifested by the people outside of Portsmouth in the return of the sons and daughters in July is apparent from the gathering at the Hotel Bellevue, Boston on Monday night, where a permanent organization was formed. Over one hundred and fifty former residents of Portsmouth now of Massachusetts assembled.

Ex-Mayor Thomas E. O. Marvin of Portsmouth presided.

Henry Clay Barnabee was present and he added much to the occasion in his line of entertaining.

Every person present was very enthusiastic over the coming event and are going to do much for its success. A banquet followed the business meeting.

RUNAWAY GIRLS ARE CAPTURED

Three more of the seven girls who escaped from the State Industrial school on the night of Friday, April 22, have been returned and the citizens who gave the information leading to their return have added strength to the criticisms so widely made over the action of the Industrial school management in attempting to keep the girls' escape a secret from the public by declaring that they could have told where the three girls were much sooner if they had been informed of their escape through the press at the time.

Two of the girls still remain at large, and no clue has been obtained to their whereabouts. Through the secrecy of the school management, the girls got a big start before their escape was known to the public, and the two yet missing may have got even farther away than did the last three returned before they attracted attention on the places they passed through.

The three last returned were Catherine Littlefield of Portsmouth, who was found at Bradford, and Lena Roberts of Derry, and Tena Thomas of Dover, who were found at Newport. They were brought back to the school Sunday by Capt. Timothy Sullivan, one of the instructors at the school, who was sent after them when word to their whereabouts was received. He first found the girl at Bradford, and there received information which led him to the other at Newport.

The girls escaped, on Friday evening, April 22, when the boys of the school were having a minstrel show and the attention of the occupants of the institution was more or less diverted to that attraction. It was at first reported that the girls walked out of the door which had been left unguarded and passed out with the visitors, but it was subsequently learned that they got out of a window and descended by means of a fire escape.

On the Monday morning following people living in the neighborhood of Bradford pond, in the town of Bradford, saw three strange girls tramping up the road. It was raining at the time and they were drenched through. All were bareheaded and one girl's shoes were coming to pieces, and she called at a house and begged a pair of old rubbers to hold them together.

It was suspected that they had run away from some institution, and some of the people who saw them looked through the newspapers to see if any such escape had been reported. It was their intention to detain the girls and notify the authorities if they had found anything in the papers to sustain their suspicions, but the girls told a plausible story, and under the circumstances they had no grounds for detaining them.

It appears that the girls traveled by night and lay concealed in the woods during the daytime. On the morning they reached Bradford they were led to keep on the road because of the rain. A report has been received that they were seen at Rivardale, above Goffstown, previous to that, and it is believed that they tramped up through Weare and Henniker. They must have suffered greatly from exposure and want of food, although they probably secured food from kindhearted persons on the way.

The Littlefield girl went no further than Bradford, as she found shelter with a family there.

The two girls still at large are Alice Lessard and Odella Dugas, both of Manchester. Eva Lefebvre and Rose anna Dillard of Manchester were recaptured at their homes in that city soon after their escape. It is feared the two still missing have got outside the state. The relatives of the three girls brought back will be much relieved to learn that they are once more in safe hands.

NEWINGTON

The death of Florence Davis, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Davis, former residents of this town, occurred at her home on School street in Portsmouth on Friday. The body was interred in the family lot in Newington cemetery. A prayer was given at the grave and many of our people were present. The schools were dismissed and teachers and pupils formed a procession and marched around the little grave, each leaving a small bunch of violets on the casket of their former schoolmate and pupil. The sorrow stricken parents have the heartfelt sympathy of all their friends in this vicinity, especially so, for they have a young son who is critically ill at the hospital, for whom all hope a speedy recovery.

The farmers in this and the surrounding towns have refused to supply Hood and company with milk at his price. They feel that they are justified in insisting on a higher price for the price of grain and hay have advanced within the last few years. There has always been too much difference between the price received by the producer and that given by the consumer, and the time has arrived when the farmer says that he cannot afford to furnish milk at the prices before received. They ask for only what seems to them right and it is hoped that the contractors will see justice in the demand, and that the price asked for will be granted, thus settling the milk strike in an amicable manner.

Mrs. Eva Hardell and family, who have been the guests of her sister, Mrs. Howard Knox, the past week, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris of Greenland were the guests of Mr. Albert and Miss Little Pickering on Sunday.

On Saturday afternoon and evening Mrs. Ann S. Frank entertained many friends and relatives, who called to congratulate her on her eighty-sixth birthday. She enjoys good health and the day was passed very pleasantly.

Messrs. Frederick Pickering and Howard Knox attended the milk meeting which was held in Boston last week.

Several of our townspeople attended the milk conference in Greenland on Saturday evening. The farmers are planning a way to dispose of their milk. A creamery is being built in Greenland it is hoped that it will be ready for the milk in a few days.

The schools were closed on fast day, and the teachers and pupils enjoyed the day by visiting some of the nearby towns.

Lyman Staples and son Harold, of South Elliot, Me., were the guests of Miss Mary Pickering on Sunday.

Viola Hoyt and Grace and Florence Pickering were calling last Thursday on their former schoolmates, who moved to Portsmouth during the winter.

Clyde Archbald was in town on Monday afternoon, calling on friends.

Mrs. Clarence Staples has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. George Davis, in Portsmouth, for a few days.

Miss Hannah Pickering, though still poorly, is better and is passing a few days with Mrs. Albert Pray of Gravelly Ridge. Her friends are pleased to learn that she is able to be out once more and hope that she will soon be in her usual health.

NO CHANGE IN MILK WAR

Shipments From Here Even Smaller Last Night—Creamery Plans Perfected—Schedule Offered By Contractors.

There was comparatively little change in the milk situation on Monday. Both sides appear to be confident that they will win in the end and as yet no great shortage of milk is reported in Boston, although it was admitted that less than ten per cent. was shipped Sunday night. The contractors claim that they have milk enough and the producers claim that the shortage will not show until today or tomorrow, for the contractors have been storing the milk for the past two days and there was plenty of milk even if it was not over fresh. In this city Monday evening there was a falling off of twenty-six cans from the first night, when less than a quarter of the regular number of cans were shipped. At Greenland there were a few less cans shipped, about thirty-three out of the four hundred and a drop of a few cans from Sunday's shipment was reported from various points along the line.

The farmers of this section are having their milk separated for the cream while waiting for the opening of the creamery at Greenland. This will be known as the Breakfast Hill Creamery association, and the incorporation papers will be taken out on Wednesday, when they meet at President Wallace Hackett's office in this city and draw up the necessary papers.

The directors met at Greenland on Monday and staked out the building and ordered the work started.

They figure that with a first-class creamery there will be more money in separating the milk for the cream than sending it into Boston. For instance, it is figured that from 100 pounds of milk with four per cent. butter fat, which is small, they can get five quarters of forty per cent. cream, which sells at $1.50 a gallon, or a better price than can be obtained for the milk required to make it.

The machinery is all ordered and even if the strike is settled it will be a permanent affair, for there is always a good market for cream.

The schedule of prices that the contractors want the farmers to agree to are: For May, 27 cents a can, for an eight and a half quart can; for June, 26 cents a can; July, 31 cents; August, 31 cents, and September, the winter prices of 38 cents a can, those prices to prevail until the following May. From this price must be taken three cents a can for teaming to the depot, that being the price the farmers have to pay for hauling. This would make the price for May 24 cents a can, or but 3 cents a quart. In June it would be even less than that amount.

In the meanwhile the farmers do not appear to be worrying a great deal over the situation, and are satisfied that the contractors will have to come around to their way of thinking.

GOVERNOR FAILED ON MILK FIGHT

Boston, May 3.
Gov. Draper again failed Monday in his effort to bring about arbitration between milk contractors and the striking producers. He is still hopeful that he can bring the two interests together on some plan.

For several hours in the forenoon he labored with representatives of the various interests and offered his good offices to both sides. The two factions did not meet. Charles H. Hood, of the H. P. Hood Co., and W. A. Graustein of the Boston Dairy company, representing the contractors, were the first to appear. Later President Stanley Abbott and Secretary W. A. Hunter of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' association, were shown into the executive offices and were closeted for almost an hour with the governor.

"I have seen representatives of the producers and some of the contractors who sell milk in Boston this morning," Gov. Draper said at the conclusion of the interviews. "The representatives of the producers are still willing to arbitrate. The contractors whom I saw this morning are not willing to arbitrate as to the price of milk which they should pay to the producers."

"This leaves things exactly as they were, and I am sorry that conditions are as they are. The contractors say they will be able to supply the demand of the consumers in Boston for milk of a proper quality."

"I have told the representatives of the producers and the various contractors with whom I have talked that if I could be of any assistance in bringing harmony out of this disagreement I would be delighted to do whatever I could; that I am interested on both sides. I desire to see the farmers get a proper price for the milk which they produce and I am also anxious and shall use my best efforts to see that arrangements are made so that the consumers shall have a proper supply of good milk."

"I sincerely trust that the differences between the producers and distributors of this great product will be shortly adjusted."

On leaving the governor's room Charles H. Hood declared that the contractors had nothing to arbitrate. "We are now getting a sufficient quantity of milk to supply our patrons," he remarked, "and we are selling it at the usual rate. If we accede to the demands of the producers we shall be obliged to raise the price to consumers. Inasmuch as the milk will still come into the market which can be sold at a lower figure, we do feel that there will be an assured market for the product at an advanced price."

"Under these conditions the contractors do not feel at liberty to meet the producers' demands."

Plenty of Milk.

Although Boston has been in a state of siege for 24 hours as a result of the war between the milk producers and the contractors, no inconvenience has been felt today by consumers, nor is the public likely to suffer and hardship of a threatened shortage of milk, for days to come.

Even the farmers admit this, yet they succeeded Sunday in holding back more than 80,000 of their regular shipment of approximately 40,000 cans daily, further reduced their supply Monday and intend to continue the embargo in the local market until they get their price.

Notwithstanding this wholesale curtailment, what they roughly estimate as 90 per cent. of the daily shipment, shopkeepers, hotels, cafes, housekeepers and the army of consumers in the city and suburbs had all the milk they wanted.

This was because contractors, who had anticipated the shut-off and prepared for it, succeeded in procuring a supply Sunday and Monday which more than met the demand. They got their milk chiefly from stations outside the regular New England milk belt, and some of it came from producers within the territory affected by the strike, who have refused to join the rebellious farmers, though those so-called "neutrals" represent a small percentage.

The contractors further assure the public that they can keep right on getting an independent supply "indifferently" and that there is no fear of a famine. They will not disclose what outside territory it is coming from, but it has been learned that the bulk of it is coming from New York state and some of it even from "auction markets."

90 Per Cent. Held Back.

Secretary W. A. Hunter of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' company declares the striking farmers held back fully 90 per cent. of their regular daily shipments to the Boston market when the embargo was inaugurated Sunday. Reports from all over New England and eastern New York convinced him and the other directors of the farmers' association that their campaign had surpassed their expectations.

The reduction in Monday's shipment will not be known until today. In fact, a definite balance of Sunday's figures has not yet been struck off. Between 50,000 and 55,000 cans of milk are shipped to this city by rail every morning, and of this number the striking farmers say they control approximately 40,000 cans. They argue that the success of their embargo is illustrated by the solid manner in which their 5000 or more sympathizers live up to their pledges Sunday when they held back what is hastily estimated at 35,000 cans of milk.

A canvass on Monday shows a comparison of shipment, Saturday and Sunday and of 20,434 cans only 2,128 were shipped.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

Feeding a Family of Five on $4 a Week.

"My husband," said the woman with the optimistic face, "gives me $4 a week for keeping up the table for our family, and it is simply wonderful how we do it."

"I should think so," observes the woman with the grim smile. "How big a family have you?"

"My husband, myself, three boys and one girl."

"And you keep up your table with $4 a week? What do you have?"

"For breakfast we have a cereal, fruit, coffee and sometimes bacon and eggs; for luncheon cold meats or croquettes or something made of the leftovers from dinner the night before; and a simple dessert; for dinner we have a soup, chicken or roast meat, two vegetables, a salad, coffee and a dessert."

"My goodness! What prices do you pay for groceries and meats?"

"Mercy me! I never ask. I just telephone to the grocer and meat man and tell them what I want, and my husband gets the bills the first of the month."

"But I thought you said he allowed you only $4 a week?"

"So he does, and by charging nearly everything, do you know, I actually save $8 or $10 a month from that allowance!"—Judge's List.

ROOSEVELT INDORSES TAFT

Won't Run For President,
Is Washington Report

OUTLINE OF "DECISIONS"

Not a Candidate For Congress, Senate or Governorship of New York—
Favors Loeb For Latter Position as Successor to Hughes—To Deliver
Some Speeches in Congressional Campaign in the West

Washington, May 3.—The Washington Post says that "Theodore Roosevelt has written several letters to President Taft clearly indicating that he thoroughly indorses the present administration." The story goes on to say that Roosevelt's choice for governor of New York to succeed Charles B. Hughes is William Loeb, Jr., collector of the port of New York.

Continuing, the Post story says: "In the letters to President Taft, and others to Senator Root and Collector Loeb, Colonel Roosevelt declares his decision to remain in private life is final."

The Washington paper sums up some of the decisions of the former president as follows:

He will not be a candidate for reelection to the presidency under any circumstances.

He will not be a candidate for congress.

He will not be a candidate to succeed Chauncey M. Depew in the senate.

He will not be a candidate for the governorship of New York.

He will make one or two speeches in the west, advocating the return of Republicans to the Sixty-Second congress.

He will remain in private life, and will devote his efforts to literary work and to the delivery of many lectures.

Efforts were made to confirm the statement that the former president has written letters to President Taft and to other persons indorsing the present administration unreservedly, but confirmation was found to be lacking.

On the other hand, well-informed men here concede the plausibility of most of the statements accredited to Roosevelt, although denying that authority for them can be found in black and white on this side the Atlantic. Friends of Roosevelt never have doubted that the ex-president is warmly sympathetic with Taft and his policies, although regretting the effect of some mistakes of methods.

The story further says that while Roosevelt believes that a contest within the party, when it is confined to opinions of legislation, may be healthful, he does not favor a degree of insubordination that threatens to disrupt the party at the polls, and will probably deliver some speeches in the congressional campaign in the west urging the return of Republicans to congress.

When Roosevelt speaks before the national conservation congress in St. Paul in September, it is said he will declare himself again for the policies for which he has always stood, but will insist that the work be pressed forward without making conservation a pivot for political expedients.

In a word Roosevelt has expressed himself as convinced that Taft has been working hard and conscientiously to carry out the policies which were started during the Roosevelt administration, and has given to the Taft administration his whole approval.

INSURGENTS BEAT TAFT

Distinctive Features of Original Railroad Bill Are Chopped Out

Washington, May 3.—President Taft's railroad legislation will be emasculated. At the close of a protracted conference of leading "regular" Republican senators last night, it was apparent that the revolt of the senate "insurgents" had been virtually successful, and that the sections of the bill relative to traffic agreements and mergers, which insurgents have been fighting to amend, will be abandoned.

Practically nothing distinctive of the original bill will remain, save the sections providing for the creation of a court of commerce. Even that has had a perilous time in the house, and nobody is prepared to guarantee that it will be enacted.

The Aurora is Safe

St. John's, May 3.—Scandal steamer Aurora, with a crew of 187 men, which had been reported missing, was sighted by steamer Diana, which has arrived at Herring Neck. The vessel was homeward bound.

White Slave Indictments

New York, May 3.—Several indictments against persons accused of carrying on "white slave" traffic in New York were handed down by the special grand jury. Three named are already under arrest.

No Corporation Decision

Washington, May 3.—No decision of the supreme court of the United States was announced Monday in the corporation tax cases.

BALLINGER DENIES RESIGNATION RUMOR

Declares That He Intends to Remain in Taft's Cabinet

Washington, May 3.—"If I were disposed to consider the question of resignation, I would not do so as long as these vicious and unwarranted attacks continue against me," said Secretary of the Interior Ballinger in denying the renewed rumor that he contemplated retiring from President Taft's cabinet soon after the Ballinger-Planchet investigation is concluded. "I have no intention of resigning," he emphatically declared.

The rumor was to the effect that the resignation of Ballinger as secretary of the interior was to be expected about as soon as he could write after the investigation committee had made its report. This action would be taken, it was said, regardless of what the verdict of the committee might be.

GOVERNOR'S EFFORTS FAIL

Boston Milk Contractors Refuse to Agree to Arbitrate Strike

Boston, May 3.—The first week day of the milk strike ended with the farmers holding back every gallon of milk they had claimed to control with confidence on their part that the contractors were losing money by the prices they were being forced to pay for additional railroad hauls, and by a disagreement among the three largest contractors because two lowered the price of milk 1 cent a quart, which the third refused to do.

The fact that there was no actual shortage of milk did not bother the farmers. They said that no shortage was to be expected before Thursday at the outside.

Another conference with Governor Draper failed to bring arbitration any nearer. The Producers' association again announced its willingness to arbitrate, but the contractors adhered to their statement that the question was one incapable of arbitration.

Militia Bill Vetoed

Boston, May 3.—Governor Draper sent to the house his first veto of the year in which he states his objections to the bill which provides that employees of a city or town on military duty shall receive compensation from the city or town. The governor says the bill would establish a privileged class and create jealousy in the service.

Taxpayers to Get Back $5,000,000

Washington, May 3.—The court of claims rendered a decision holding that a certain line of tax collections on legacies made as a result of legislation enacted to carry on the Spanish-American war should be refunded. The decision means the return to the taxpayers of about $5,000,000.

WESTON GETS WARM WELCOME

Long Tramp Finally Ended
by Aged Pedestrian

HE WEEPS AT THE FINISH

Covered Over Thirty-Five Hundred Miles in Less Than Seventy-Three Days—Object Was to Encourage Young Athletes and Show Old Men What Could Be Accomplished—Presented With Gold Championship Belt

New York, May 3.—Five hundred thousand people crammed New York's greatest thoroughfare to see one white-haired man march through their cheering lines. The man was Edward P. Weston, and the ovation which he received was the greatest ever accorded to any man not connected with public life.

At 3:10 o'clock, a speck in a human whirlpool, he mounted the steps of city hall toward Mayor Gaynor. And as he took the last step of his 3500-mile record-breaking ocean to ocean walk, and the hand of the mayor closed upon his shoulders, the aged pedestrian broke down and wept, with great tears rolling down his cheeks. He attempted to speak, but the trembling of his lips prevented him, and so he stood with lowered head, and with the mayor's arm across his shoulders.

Below him the gathered thousands took off their hats and cheered and cheered and cheered.

In 72 days and 23 hours he has walked 3483 scheduled miles and over 3500 actual miles. When he started he intended to perform the feat in 90 days. He has completed the task on the 48th day of his 72 day.

Both Weston and Gaynor were jostled by the immense crowd, which pressed in upon them with irresistible force despite drastic measures on the part of the police. A circle of patrolmen surrounded them and beat the crowd back as best they could. Without speaking Weston produced a letter to Gaynor from Mayor Alexander of Los Angeles and handed it to Gaynor.

The mayor took it and read it, and then looked affectionately at Weston. "I am proud of you," he said, "and the whole world ought to be proud of you. Your achievement is a marvelous one. There was never anything like it in the history of the world. You are a benefactor to the human race, for you have shown people what can be done by a man who lives simply and healthfully in the open air."

"You have made people go out into the open and taught them how to live. If they will follow your example they ought to live to be 100 years old, instead of dying at the age of 60, after living the last few years of their lives living the last few years of their lives surpassed every feat of ancient and modern athletes."

Mr. Weston was deeply moved. When he was finally able to speak, he told the mayor in a low voice that his sole idea in taking the long walk was to encourage the young athletes, and to show old men what could be accomplished.

After his address, the mayor presented him with an envelope, containing about $400, which had been subscribed for Weston by some of his friends. "And that's not all," said the mayor, "there's more to come."

Later, in the mayor's private office, he was presented with a gold championship belt by President Powers of the Eastern baseball league. It is the famous six-day-go-as-you-please belt won by Dineen and Cavanaugh in 1902 and 1903, respectively.

The speeches over, Gaynor and Weston had a cup of tea together in the mayor's office, and the mayor, who is an ardent walker, invited Weston to visit his country place on Long Island.

STRIKE IS AUTHORIZED

Trolley Lines in Western Massachusetts May Be Tied Up

Springfield, Mass., May 3.—The sanction of the executive board of the International union for the threatened trolley men's strike in this city and Worcester was received last evening.

The board of aldermen last night passed an order requesting the parties at issue to resort to arbitration in the failure of other means of settlement of the wage question.

Another conference between President Storrs of the New England Investment and Security company, the holding concern, and representatives of the trolley men's unions, has been set for today.

Congressman Peters Hurt

Washington, May 3.—Representative Peters of Boston was cranking his automobile when it "backfired," the crank flew from his hand and before he could get out of the way the heavy brass handle struck him on the right arm, breaking the bone.

New Bureau of Mines

Washington, May 3.—The senate passed the bill creating a bureau of mines, with a director at a salary of $6000 a year, to be under the department of the interior. The measure has already passed the house.

POLICE HUNTING FOR GIRL

Charged With Larceny at Boston of Nearly $4000 Worth of Jewelry

Boston, May 3.—The police all over the country have been notified to watch for Louise Jones, 17 years old, charged with the larceny of jewelry valued at $3777, a default warrant having been issued from the municipal criminal court for her arrest, while suit has been entered for the sureties offered for her bail, which was placed at $5000.

Elita J. Moses of Houghs Neck offered real estate as sureties for the girl's appearance last Friday, when she was declared defaulted. A keeper has been placed in the Pandora Park hotel. The writ has been filed, which begins suit for the amount of $5000.

WORCESTER'S TWO YEARS OF DROUGHT

Million Dollars' Worth of Liquor Consumed During That Period

Worcester, Mass., May 3.—Two years of no-license in this city has become past history. Figures compiled by the police, however, show that Worcester has not been completely "dry" during the twenty-four months that the saloons were closed.

The police figures, based upon a record of liquor shipments into the city by the various express companies, indicate that during two years of drought Worcester people paid for liquor $999,929 on legal shipments protected by the federal interstate commerce law.

How great a quantity of alcoholic beverages has come into the city through underground channels will never be known. The record of express shipments, however, shows that during the two years of no-license there was brought into Worcester the grand total of 2,127,551 gallons of beer and ale and 103,293 gallons of whisky.

MORSE'S GREAT STRUGGLE

Application to Supreme Court For Writ of Habeas Corpus

Washington, May 3.—Marlin W. Littleton, attorney for Charles W. Morse, who is serving a fifteen-year sentence in the Atlanta federal penitentiary, appeared before the United States supreme court and made a motion for leave to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Littleton says Morse was convicted illegally, one of the jurors having been mentally unsound, while government agents surrounded Morse in the courtroom. It is also charged that the trial judge did not observe the formalities of law in sentencing the prisoner.

READY FOR SIGNATURE

Bar and Bottle Bill Is Enacted by Massachusetts Senate

Boston, May 3.—The famous bar and bottle bill, which divides the liquor licenses and says that a bar license shall not be exercised on the same premises where there is a license to sell bottled goods, was enacted in the senate by a vote of 20 to 17.

That is the last stage of the bitter fight over the bill in the legislature. It now goes to Governor Draper, who is said to be prepared to sign it.

The bill is regarded as the most drastic anti-liquor measure that has gone through the legislature in years.

TARIFF PLANS OF PRESIDENT

Seems Likely to Have the Sanction of Congress

NO CHANGE AT PRESENT

Plan to Secure Appropriation of $250,000 to Enable Study of Prices by Experts—Scientific Revision in Two or Three Years—Considered in Some Quarters as Lifeline of the Republican Party

Washington, May 3.—President Taft's purpose to let the tariff alone for the next two or three years, but to pave the way for an ultimate revision which shall be the most thorough and scientific in the history of the country, bids fair to meet with the sanction of congress.

The start will be made with an appropriation of $250,000 with which to enable the tariff board to make a study of the comparative costs of production in the United States and foreign countries. This will be done not only through the personal investigations of the present tariff board, but by means of the best experts in various lines of production the board can employ.

Representative McCall of Massachusetts has been particularly active in assisting Chairman Tawney of the committee on appropriations to bring about conditions in the house which will result in the approval by the house of the item of $250,000 which Tawney will insert in the sundry civil bill.

The task of securing this appropriation requires much patience and skill. Not only must the house be canvassed and the members shown the great advantages, political and otherwise, which the president expects to result from his investigation, but several legal complications must be considered, that the appropriation may not go out on a point of order.

It is a rule of legislation that whenever the terms of an appropriation seek to change existing law, a point may be raised by any member that the clause is "out of order," and if it is apparent that the appropriation implies new legislation, the speaker has no option but to declare it out of order and the appropriation fails.

McCall, Tawney and their associates believe that the appropriation for the tariff work can be made strictly within the provisions of existing law, which in this case are contained in the Payne tariff act. They will rely upon several provisions in the act.

If the case can be made strong enough, and McCall, who is an able lawyer, believes it can, the appropriation will meet with no obstacle to congress among Republicans, but the votes of the stand-patters.

It is by no means certain that these gentlemen will think it wise to oppose the appropriation, for they are all Republicans and most of them already have developed the political sense to see that unless this concession is made to the country and the Republican party shows its willingness to make future tariffs in the daylight and not in the dark, the voters will be given a substantial excuse for rejecting the stand-pat element from public life.

The members of the lower branch are more amenable to public opinion than the senators and many of them believe that this tariff plan of the president's is the lifeline of the Republican party. If such a thing can exist, if it were possible to change some of the duties in the Payne law, like those on paper and pulp, congress would like to do it, but it is axiomatic that no item of American tariff can be changed without opening the whole to revision.

In the excited state of the public mind, no doubt several of the great schedules of the bill would be torn to pieces, if revision should come now, with little regard for the business aspects of the questions involved. President Taft desires to avoid such a catastrophe, yet to prepare the way for a thorough revision which shall work no hardship. In the opinion of thoughtful men the policy he has marked out in this respect is almost epoch-making.

HERE TO WAKE UP AMERICAN WOMEN

Task Which Newly Arrived
British Suffragist Assumes

New York, May 3.—Mrs. Dora B. Montefiore, an English suffragist who thinks that American women ought to wake up, has arrived in New York from Liverpool to help along the cause for which she has been fighting in England and other countries.

"It is time that American women should awaken to a full realization of the great issue that is involved in the fight," she said. "The women who have been working vigorously for suffrage in this country have not received quite the amount of encouragement that they should have had from their sisters."

Mrs. Montefiore's first active work for suffrage was in Sydney, N. S. W.

Copenhagen, May 3.—The Stars and Stripes floated above the royal palace Monday for the first time in the history of Denmark, and ex-President Roosevelt, in the absence of King Frederick in southern France, is the guest of Crown Prince Christian, one of the palaces being placed at the disposal of Roosevelt and his family.

The prince, presiding at a dinner as the king's representative, thanked Roosevelt for coming to this court, and proposed his health, which was heartily responded to.

Mr. Roosevelt, in reply, said that he had received a cordial message from the king and thanked the prince for his hospitality. He then proposed a toast to the king and the royal family of Denmark.

DIAGNOSIS BY TELEPHONE

Woman's Heart Beats Are Heard at Distance of Hundred Miles

London, May 3.—A test that has just been carried on shows it is possible to diagnose heart trouble by telephone at a distance of 100 miles.

The experiment was conducted between Mr. Milne's house on the Isle of Wight, where the seismologist and four physicians, using an ordinary telephone, listened interestedly to the beating of a woman's heart in London.

A stethoscope held over her heart in the familiar manner had attached to it a telephone relay invented by Sidney Brown. By means of this device minute sounds are magnified.

HALE WIELDS HORSEWHIP

Senator's Son Punishes Editor For Alleged Slandorous Article

Portland, Mo., May 3.—A horse-whipping was administered by Colonel Frederick Hale, son of United States Senator Hale, and a leading candidate for congress to succeed Representative Allen, to Charles T. Libby, publisher of several suburban weekly papers, at the latter's office. The cause of the assault was an alleged slanderous article published in the Six Towns Times in which Hale's mother was attacked.

The editorial to which Hale objected charged that Mrs. Hale in her ambition for her son was willing to buy his nomination. It then said: "Mrs. Hale, the daughter of the notorious Zach Chandler and brought up from childhood in the atmosphere of the most unscrupulous political chicanery, has said to friends in Portland: 'Fred shall go to congress, no matter what it costs.'"

"In so doing she lays aside the garment of modesty which in New England protects womanhood from political asperities and stands forth in all the hideousness of open corruption. Her sole purpose deprives her of all consideration due to her sex."

"Murder in the Ring"

Leads to Protest Against Contest Between Jeffries and Johnson

San Francisco, May 3.—The statewide demand that the Jeffries-Johnson fight be called off as a result of the death of Tommy McCarthy after his fight with Owen Moran has alarmed the promoters of the battle.

His death is declared in one of the leading papers to have been a "murder in the ring," and the sporting fraternity fears that the agitation will result in killing the fight game in California.

Under the leadership of the San Francisco Church Federation, clergy men throughout California are preparing to make formal protest to the state and the Alameda county authorities against the heavyweight championship match slated for July 4.

The federation has appointed a committee to carry the protest to Governor Gillett. From more than a score of widely separated cities, and towns demands for the stopping of the big fight have come from clergymen and congregations.

A SOCIALIST OPPORTUNITY

The Boston milk strike affords the best political argument that has fallen to the Socialists in many, very many months.

The Socialists will demand that either the state or the city take over the business of gathering and distributing this necessity of life, and they will present some arguments that will be pretty hard to gainsay.

One fact which stands out clearly, is that that most numerous class, the consumers, has not been much considered by either of the other two classes, the producers and the milk contractors. Neither one has prepared and presented a public statement giving facts and figures such as the public ought to have. Anybody can make the bold assertion that they can or cannot afford to do a thing, and such assertions have been reiterated, but, like the man from Missouri, the public would like to be shown. One thing is certain, however, that the dissatisfaction among the producers is genuine and not of the kind that is manufactured when wanted.

BIRDEYE VIEWS

The charge made in Chicago that William Lorimer was elected to the United States senate by bribery is shaking Washington political circles. Republican leaders refused to discuss the matter at all for publication. One prominent member of the party, however, declared that he feared the effect of the charge of corruption. It would have, he said, as serious an effect on the party's chances in the Middle West in the coming congressional elections as the conviction of State Senator Jotham P. Aldis as a bribe-taker by the New York senate is believed to have had in the Empire state. Senator Lorimer has played a prominent part in waterways legislation in the house, in which he served during the fifty-fourth, fifty-fifth, fifty-sixth, fifty-ninth, sixtieth and sixty-first congresses. He was elected to the senate on May 27, 1909. On June 17, 1909, he resigned his seat in the house and the following day took his seat in the senate. His term expires March 3, 1915.

The president sent a message to the house Saturday on the Panama canal, declaring it is this country's right and duty to fortify it. The message was accompanied by a letter on the subject from the secretary of war, together with the report of the board of officers of the army and navy appointed for the purpose of considering the subject of the defense of the canal.

The United States government is to go into the business of propagating fresh water clams to supply the pearl button industry, which is languishing because of a scarcity of shell. The first station is to be established at La Crosse, Wis.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

A Pointer for Portsmouth

Much has appeared in the newspapers of late regarding the adoption of the "safe and sane" Fourth of July by communities of New England by New York and other cities of the East. Now we read that "Springfield's example" is to be followed this year for the first time in far-away Denver, the people having determined upon a celebration of Independence day that will not tend longer to continue "the sad war times."

Under the auspices of the united patriotic societies the movement in Denver has won the backing of the municipal authorities, and bids fair to make an encouraging beginning. The committee in charge urges that such fireworks as are permitted be confined to the hours between 4 to 9 a. m. and 6 to 10 p. m., the same as in this city. The mayor is requested further to recognize the movement by opening the auditorium and the parks to the public, permitting a street parade and providing a police escort. The mayor's reply was to the point and in the main satisfactory: "Your societies will be permitted the use of the auditorium, a permit to parade will be issued and a police escort allowed." The Park Department likewise reported willingness to cooperate. The sale of dangerous explosives is to be prohibited, although the mayor expressed doubt as to the possibility of this first year of restricting the use of smaller fireworks to certain hours, as suggested.

Denver is to be congratulated, but more so is Springfield, now that the city has set about to advertise itself. Nothing serves the advertiser so well as a brilliant and original idea. Every time the report is published that another city has adopted the "Springfield idea" for a safe and sane Fourth we have evidence of good words being spoken and favorable thoughts entertained concerning the advanced metropolis of Central Massachusetts. When, our example, even in one matter, moves whole cities to follow, it must certainly further the desire in a host of citizens to become one of us. Springfield may rejoice, self-interesting, therefore, in the benefits accruing from the dissemination of the "Springfield idea" as an advertisement as well as sympathetically in the direct benefits to the converts in favor of a new fashioned Fourth of July.—Springfield News.

Independent Business

Man Almost Extinct

MORE and more in the cities and towns the independent business man is being overwhelmed by the advance of the department store, while in the country and in the small towns looms up the mail-order house.

The natural impulse is to think that these changes must be due to the evil ways and inordinate greed of certain men, and that our first duty is to restrain such men. As a matter of fact, no conceivable power can stop these changes, and they have nothing to do with the greed of any man. They are simply business in the present stage of evolution. Greater economies, greater efficiency, greater profits, the combination, concentration, organization, the simplification of processes. That is all—and enough. Human power could not check any such development any more than it could reverse the sea tides.

CHURCHILL GIVES ENGLAND HIS VIEWS

Mr. Winston Churchill, the American novelist, is at present in London, and from that follows this talk in the London Chronicle with him on affairs and letters.

He and his wife have been to Egypt and the Nile for a holiday, and now they are returning to America. It was natural to ask Mr. Churchill about the Old Egypt of the Pharaohs and the New Egypt of Lord Cromer. How did both strike him?

"Yes," he said, "I have been reading all about both and seeing both, and it has been very, very interesting. The whole problem of Egypt is one of intense interest, and I did my best to study it. Broadly, it is the same problem that we have in the Philippines, the government and development of an alien people, with the word 'alien' underscored."

At home Mr. Churchill is the keen politician using that word in its human and therefore its highest sense, as well as the popular novelist.

He is one of the leaders of the Young America which is knocking at the door; the Young America which is bethinking itself earnestly of the well-being of the people, of their happiness and comfort, as against machine-made politics. On those lines he put up a good fight for the governorship of New Hampshire, the state in which he has his country home.

A Moral Convulsion

"Perhaps," he said, "the actual political situation in America is not very well understood on the European side of the Atlantic, and perhaps it is worth explaining, for what may follow."

"A moral movement, expressed more or less in a political form, is convulsing the country, like nothing we have had since the civil war. It has sprung from the people and is making rapid, victorious strides everywhere. I think it might be likened to your national uprising, the English reform movement of the 30s."

"It is not a party cleavage, but something far deeper, and far bigger than that. The issue is as between the generous, progressive causes for which men like Roosevelt and Gov. Hughes stand, and the selfishness of the trusts which have always sought to control the political machines. The policy of the timocracy, as, thinking of an old Greek word, one may call the plutocracy, the business trusts, has been to get hold of whatever party happened to be in power, to capture that party and use it for selfish business ends. It is against this thing that the country is rising in its wrath."

"The people in general don't care which party they vote for, but they know what they want, and if they Parady was Miss Florence E. Austin, a daughter, Louise Florence. Mrs. Fred S. Wendell of Portsmouth was in town Monday.

don't get it from a republican they will support a democrat. A struggle is going on between the progressive section of the republicans and the other section, and much will depend on its result. The people have been asking; what vitally affects the cost of living in America, that the tariff shall be lowered to a point where it simply protects home labor.

"They think they have been cheated on this matter by the republican leaders, and they are stirring up the party. If the progressive section of the republicans gets control, good and well; if they don't, then a new party of progress, drawing its strength from both the existing parties, and from all quarters, will probably arise. Until recently Americans as a whole have not really concerned themselves with politics. They have let them drift, left them to the professional politicians. But the great waters of citizenship are now moving, and the people's will has got to find its expression in an organized way—by dominating the republican party, or by creating a new party."

There is no fundamental difference between a progressive republican and a progressive democrat of my age—we see the same road of advance, the same hope of public reform achieved at the end of it.

"You would be astonished at what has been done within the past five years or so. Why, in that time, in New Hampshire, we have got most of our reform passed into law. It will take longer, of course, to influence the legislation of the commonwealth as a whole but it is only a question of time. Perhaps it should be made clear that the demand for a lower tariff in America is not to be confused with the larger movement on foot.

"The tendency of commerce in this age is toward organization, combination and that is clearly realized. People will differentiate between trusts and their purposes. But we say they shall be regulated by the federal government in such a way that while they are able to make a legitimate profit, they shall not be able to rob the people."

Roosevelt, The American.

The name of Mr. Roosevelt came into the talk again, and of him Mr. Churchill, his friend and admirer, said: "I think he represents the American mind and its aspirations. There is, at a given time, nearly always a man who stands for and interprets the forward march of a people. He, and second to him, Gov. Hughes, have been rallying points for the new forces at work in American life."

"Mr. Roosevelt is a man with great power and influence, and no doubt these have grown rather than away."

FIRST COMPANY COAST ARTIL-

LERY HAVE AN INSPECTION AND DANCE.

The first annual ball of the First Company Coast Artillery Corps, N. H. N. G., was held on Monday evening at Freeman's hall and it was in every way a great success. There was a big crowd present, both on the floor and in the galleries and everybody seemed to be enjoying themselves.

The ball was handsomely decorated with the national colors and a profusion of bunting. The back of the stage was draped with a large flag and to the right the old thirteen-star flag and on the other side the flag of 1861.

Hoyt and Parker's orchestra rendered a very fine program. It was: March, "Scherzo,".....Runnell Overture, "Stradella,".....Plotow Selection, "Old Town,".....Luders

One of the pleasing features was the inspection of the company by Major Chauncey B. Hoyt, and the company made an excellent showing. They appeared for the first time in their new dress uniforms and drilled in fine shape under the able command of Captain Frederic T. Harriman. The inspection was witnessed by the officers from Fort Constitution and several officers from the battleship New Hampshire.

The grand march was led by Capt. Frederic T. Harriman with Miss Ella C. Randall, followed by First Lieut. Washburn and Lady, Second Lieut. Bodwell and Lady and the guests and members of the company to the number of eighty.

Dancing was enjoyed until one o'clock, the order containing nineteen numbers.

The officers of the dance were: Floor marshal—Capt. Frederic T. Harriman.

Assistant floor marshals—First Lieutenant I. H. Washburn, Second Lieutenant Clarence P. Bodwell.

Floor director—First Sergt. Austin F. Remick.

Assistant floor director—Qm. Sergt. William H. Naylor.

ONE MOMENT PLEASE!

Electric Sign advertising is no longer an experiment. The most successful firms of world-wide reputation as well as the stores with whom we have done business give us facts that prove the advertising worth of Electric Signs to be far in excess of any method of advertising that has ever been devised for the amount expended.

Look for the most enterprising city of today and you will find one that uses Electric Signs on all available locations and where merchants appreciate the advertising value and use light. I am making and selling the best signs that can be produced, not the cheapest, but signs that will stand up and give service for years. Recent inventions have reduced the cost and also the cost of maintaining. Public spirit and civic pride demand well lighted business sections in our cities, why not do your part with a well lighted, artistic Electric Sign and increase your business as well.

I charge nothing for estimates or sketches and am always willing to explain details and serve your interests. Respectfully yours,

EVENTS OF ELIOT

Special Lectures at the East Eliot Methodist Church

Ground Broken This Morning for the New Grange Hall

Eliot, Me., May 3. Rev. M. E. King of Waverly, Mass., a missionary traveler and lecturer, is giving a series of addresses at the East Eliot Methodist church, Sunday morning and evening. He spoke on "The Bright Side of India and will this evening speak on "The Crown of India." Wednesday evening he will lecture on "A Summer Isle of Eden, the Gateway to the Orient," and the lecture will be followed by a supper given by members of the Epworth League. The evening addresses begin at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. King is an eloquent speaker.

Mrs. Lee Minard and little daughter started on Monday for a visit with her folks in Canton, Pa.

Weather permitting, the Grange Dramatic club will this evening make that long deferred trip to Rollinsford and present "A Noble Outcast."

Lyman Staples and son Harold spent Sunday with relatives in Newington.

The Congregational church has enacted the formality of a letter of dismission from membership and recommendation to the church at Epping, in the case of Rev. Edgar T. Pitts who recently left the pastorate of the Eliot church for that at Epping.

The contractor, McKenney and Littlefield, broke ground this morning for the Grange hall building.

RAILROAD NOTES

Edgar Grover, night watchman at the car barn of the Portsmouth street railway, has concluded his duties there and taken a position as engineer at the plant of the Consolidation Coal company.

John Walsh, for several years a clerk at the Armstrong depot cafe, has entered the employ of M. P. Morrissey on Vaughan street.

E. O. Foss of Rye and A. F. Joy of this city have entered the employ of the Portsmouth Electric railway as motormen.

Joseph McDonald has taken a position as night clerk at the Boston and Maine freight office.

There is no busier place along the western division of the Boston and Maine railroad just now between Durham and Newmarket where the road is being double tracked. A mammoth steam shovel and large crew of men are now at work there daily, and the job which will include the relocating and straightening of the track between the Bennett road to a point west of Durham station is expected to last all summer. When completed a marked improvement between the points mentioned will have been made. A work train leaves every morning with a score of workmen from Dover.

FUNERAL OF ADMIRAL HICHBORN

Washington, May 3.—Funeral services for Rear Admiral Philip Hichborn, U. S. N., retired, who died at his residence, 1707 N street, Sunday night, of arterial sclerosis, were held Monday afternoon at three o'clock. Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, officiated. The body will be taken to Boston for interment in Mount Auburn cemetery.

NOTICE

Mrs. Carolyn Seymour McCarthy announces that she has opened an establishment at 73 State street and is prepared to do Manicuring, Chiropody, Facial Massage and Hair Dressing, and treatment in all branches in the most approved methods. She invites the patronage of the public. Telephone 595. a27h, cod, 2v

PICKANNINIES

A son was born on Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Preston of No. 88 Market street.

A son was born last Friday to Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tilley of No. 29 Bennett street.

These additions to our city's colored population have been the causes of many congratulations to their parents.

MAY BE AT THE EAGLE

A Romeo is breaking in as motor man on the Portsmouth electric railway—Chronicle. "Wonder if a Juliet is breaking in as dishwasher at the Rockingham.—Concord Monitor.

AN EASY WINNER.

His Rival Was Prompt in Handing Him the Medal.

Assemblyman John C. Hackett of New York recently told this story in a speech: "I was in Rockland county last summer, and there was a banquet at a country hotel. All the farmers were there and all the village characters. I was asked to make a speech. 'Now,' said I, with the usual apologetic manner, 'it is not fair to you for the townmaster to ask me to speak. I am notorious as the worst public speaker in the state of New York. My reputation extends from one end of the state to the other. I have no rival whatever when it comes—'

"I was interrupted by a lanky, ill clad individual who had stuck too close to the beer pitcher. 'Gentlemen,' said he, 'I take exception to what this here man says. He ain't the worst public speaker in the state. I am. You all know it, an' I want it made a matter of record that I took exception.'

"I HADN'T GONE FAR WHEN HE GOT UP AGAIN."

"Well, my friend," said I, 'suppose we leave it to the guests. You sit down while I say my piece, and then I'll sit down and let you give a demonstration.'

"The fellow agreed, and I went on. 'I hadn't gone far when he got up again. 'S all right,' said he—'you win; needn't go no further.'"

The Waiter's Mistake.

A rather fastidious man, hurrying to catch a train, found when he reached the station that he had time to get a bite to eat. So he entered a nearby restaurant and gave his order. Then he looked at the napkin beside his plate and to his horror discovered a number of yellow egg stains on it. "Waiter," he said in a shocked voice, "look at these egg stains on my napkin!"

"Beg pardon, sir," the waiter answered, turning the napkin over. "I folded it the wrong way, sir."

Do It Now.

If there be lying before you any bit of work from which you shrink go straight up to it. The only way to get rid of it is to do it. In every piece of honest work, however trifling, laborious and commonplace, we are fellow workers with God.—F. B. Meyer.

A Sailor's Compliment.

As Miss Margot Tennant, Mrs. Aquila electrified London with her beauty, her wit and her high spirits, Mr. Gladstone admired her, and the novelist Benson owed his success to the portrait that he drew of her in "Dodo."

Gladstone, Tennyson and other distinguished persons made a cruise to Norway over summer in Sir Daniel Currie's yacht. Miss Margot Tennant was among the party, and her gaiety and beauty enchanted all on board, from Tennyson and Gladstone down to the cabin boy.

Mr. Gladstone and Miss Tennant, promenading the deck one morning, paused and talked awhile with a sailor.

"Are you married?" Miss Tennant asked him.

The sailor touched his cap and answered:

"Yes, ma'am; I'm sorry to say I am."

The Rib.

The following quotation was taken from a Connecticut woman's diary, dated 1790: "We had roast pork for dinner, and Dr. S., who carved, held up a rib on his fork and said, 'Here, ladies, is what Mother Eve was made of.'"

"Yes," said Sister Patty, "and it's from very much the same kind of critter."

Buying an Ancestor.

The famous quarterly reviewer, Mr. Abraham Hayward of London, once thought that he should like to have some ancestors. So he walked to Wardour street, where one can generally pick up an ancestor or two of the Cromwellian, Queen Anne or early Georgian period. Selecting a portrait of a cavalier in half armor, with features not quite unlike his own, Mr. Hayward made a bid for it, but, deeming the price asked too high, he went his way.

A fortnight after, the ancestral fever coming strongly upon him, he went again to Wardour street, prepared to pay the dealer his price. The picture was sold. A few days later Mr. Hayward went to dine with Lord Houghton and was astonished to see the picture in the dining room. Seeing that it attracted his guests' attention, Lord Houghton said:

"Very good picture, that; came into my hands in a curious way; portrait of a Milnes of the commonwealth period—an ancestor of mine."

"Indeed," said Mr. Hayward, "he was very near being an ancestor of mine."

In many cities of the United States the Cameraphone is already "speaking for itself."

Among the prominent theatres now devoted to Cameraphone performance it is known as the "show that talks." The tremendous effectiveness of motion picture exhibitions in which every character with moving lips, gesture and action, talks and sings, is immediately evident. They give actual life and expression, and, compared with the silent pictures, even those of the finest film makers, are like flesh and blood, a talking, breathing personality, compared to a statue. In the art of motion photography, after exquisite artistic skill has made more and more daring achievements possible, the limit has been reached, as far as the pictures themselves are concerned.

When you can go into the kitchen, light the gas and in five minutes have everything boiling, then it's a pleasure to cook. No dirt, smoke or sweat; no heat, except at the burner, which as there is practically no radiation, amounts to nothing.

To tell the truth, lady, we think any woman is foolish to sweeter over a hot cook stove. And if you only knew how little it costs to do all your work with gas, we don't believe you'd put up without it another day. Why not come in and let us tell you about it.

WESTON FINISHED LONG JOURNEY

New York, May 3.—Edward Payson Weston's record breaking walk across the continent is virtually at an end. At 8:35 o'clock on Monday he set foot on Manhattan Island crossing Kingsbridge over the Spuyten Duyvil creek.

Cheered by thousands of persons and followed by a constantly increasing crowd, he walked straight down Broadway to the last few miles of his journey to the city hall.

In honor of the day Weston discarded the plain, travel stained clothes which he has been wearing and put on a black coat, "botted shirt," a collar and tie. There was a flower in his button hole and he carried a cane.

When the advance guard of automobiles appeared at the bridge, a shout went up. A few minutes later Weston appeared, trudging along at a brisk rate. Two mounted policemen rode beside him from Yonkers. At Dockman street, they were relieved by a detail of patrolmen. During the remainder of the walk escort was changed frequently, the police having made preparations for conducting him all the way to the city hall.

Their help was needed to keep back the crowds which swelled rapidly as he came on into the city. On the last part of the walk, Weston was escorted by Company B of the Seventh regiment, of which he has been a member for 50 years. The company, in charge of Major Schuyler, acted as a reception committee and had a band with it. "I feel fine and dandy," Weston said. "My ankle is not bothering me in the least."

Weston stopped for two hours at the Hotel Ansonia, Seventy-second street and Broadway. After a lunch of tea and toast he started out at 1 o'clock on the final stage of the journey, which he has completed in 77 days. As he came out of the hotel he was greeted by a crowd which packed the sidewalks from Sixty-eighth to Seventy-fourth streets. By the time Weston reached "Times" Square the crowd which surrounded him numbered fully 15,000 persons, it was estimated. Twelve policemen had their hands full. Weston arrived at city hall at 3:10 p. m., and was warmly greeted by Mayor Gaynor.

ROOSEVELT ENDORSES TAFT

Washington, May 3.—The Washington Post states that "Theodore Roosevelt has written several letters to President Taft clearly indicating that he thoroughly endorses the present administration." The story goes on to say that Roosevelt's choice for governor of New York to succeed E. Hughes is William Loeb, Jr., collector of the port of New York. Continuing, the Post story says: "In the letters to President Taft, and others to Senator Root and Collector Loeb, Colonel Roosevelt declares his decision to remain in private life is final."

The Washington paper sums up some of the decisions of the former President as follows:

He will not be a candidate for reelection to the Presidency under any circumstances.

He will not be a candidate for Congress.

He will not be a candidate to succeed Chauncey M. Depew in the Senate.

He will not be a candidate for the governorship of New York.

He will make one or two speeches in the West, advocating the return of Republicans to the Sixty-second Congress.

He will remain in private life and will devote his efforts to literary work and to the delivery of many lectures.

Efforts were made today to confirm the statement that the former President has written letters to President Taft and to other persons endorsing the present administration unreservedly. According to the White House and despatches from Pittsburgh, President Taft has received no such letters. It was said by persons who are in position to know that if Senator Root or anybody else in public life had received a letter from the former President the document merely made it plain that Roosevelt is not at this time taking any part in the controversy as to whether the administration is making good.

Senator Lodge has been suspected by some of having received letters from the ex-President, conveying something of Roosevelt's attitude toward the Taft administration, but the Day State senator this morning emphatically stated his opinion that no shred of authority could exist in letters written to anyone in Washington, for such statements as the Post story contains. As far as President Taft is concerned, it is asserted here that he has received no word from Roosevelt since the colonel left New York.

On the other hand, well-informed here concedes the plausibility of most of the statements accredited to Roosevelt, although denying that authority for them can be found in black and white on this side the Atlantic. Friends of Roosevelt never have doubted that the ex-President is warmly sympathetic with President Taft and his policies, although regretting the effect of some mistakes of method.

MADE PLANS FOR CELEBRATION

The general committee of the Old Home Week celebration met at City hall on Monday evening, and it was voted to increase the general committee by the addition of twenty-five names.

The program committee reported a tentative plan, which provides for one day's celebration, it being the opinion of the committee that it would be better to have one good day and have the next day for general family gatherings and reunions. The plan is for a parade at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, which will, it is hoped, include sailors from the battleship New Hampshire, a company or two from the marine guard at the yard, the 156th Company, Coast Artillery, the local artillery company, the various local military organizations, the clubs and fraternal organizations and the returning sons. A collation at one o'clock for the marchers, a band concert in the afternoon and literary exercises at music hall at four o'clock in the afternoon. Possibly there will be a display of fireworks in the evening, although that was not a part of the report.

The executive committee will meet with Chairman Hackett at seven o'clock this evening.

At that time the additional committee list will be voted and much other important business transacted.

Many a Portsmouth Reader Will Feel Grateful For This Information

When your back gives out; Becomes lame, weak or aching; When urinary troubles set in; Your kidneys are "in a bad way." Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you. Here is local evidence of proof: Thomas Entwistle, city marshal, 47 Cabot street, Portsmouth, N. H., says: "I think as much of Doan's Kidney Pills today as I did years ago when I first used them. At that time I was in a bad way as the result of kidney trouble and though I had repeatedly tried remedies to get relief, my efforts were in vain. When Doan's Kidney Pills came to my attention, I procured a supply at Philbrick's Drug Store and began their use as directed. In a short time I was rid of kidney trouble and felt better in every way. I occasionally have a slight pain in my back, but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills give me prompt relief."

HALE WHIPPED EDITOR

Portland, Me., May 3.—A horsewhipping was administered Monday by Col. Frederick Hale, son of United States Senator Eugene Hale and a leading candidate for congress from the First Maine district to succeed Representative Amos L. Allen, to Charles Thornton Libby, publisher of several suburban weekly papers, at the latter's office.

The cause of the assault was an alleged slanderous article published in the Six Towns Times, in which Colonel Hale's mother was attacked.

The article complained of an alleged statement by Mrs. Hale that her son should go to congress regardless of the cost and severely criticised her.

Libby Did Not Resist.

Accompanied by a local newspaper man who had not been informed of the nature of the errand, Colonel Hale entered Mr. Libby's office, and after being introduced asked if he was responsible for the article. Being informed that he was, Colonel Hale drew from beneath his coat a horsewhip and struck the publisher several blows over the shoulders. Colonel Hale is short of stature, while Mr. Libby is fully six feet tall. Mr. Libby made no resistance except to try to ward off the blows.

Man Attacked Very Calm.

In a statement later Colonel Hale said:

"I thought the matter over carefully and came to the conclusion that the only thing that I could do and retain my self-respect was to inflict personal chastisement upon the man responsible for the article."

Mr. Libby said:

"I am, of course, sorry for the affair, but do not blame Mr. Hale at all. I think better of him for it. I certainly shall not bring action for assault. Really it is nothing to me, personally, at all, but put this down—that the first Maine congressional district is not for sale."

THE SKELETON IN THE CLOSET.

A Rattling of Its Bones That Terrified Its Keepers.

By GEORGE ETHELBERT WALSH.
[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Beverly Westlake drifted into Lakeville an obscure, poverty stricken man and by dint of hard work and shrewd business investments prospered until he was by common consent counted the leading citizen and merchant of that enterprising metropolis.

Jack Lecon entered Lakeville under a Pullman car. Jack was walking on Grand street when Beverly Westlake swung around the corner and walked toward him.

Jack's first impulse was to vanish, but on second thought he remained passive and motionless, staring in surprise and wonder at the approaching figure. His eyes were bulging, and his mouth stood agape. With the con-

THERE WAS A QUEER LIKENESS TO THE NECK.

ident swing of the successful and well satisfied man, Beverly Westlake walked along, scarcely noticing the silent beggar on the street—not until the man's voice startled him violently from his mental repose.

"Hello, Penchy" was the irreverent salute of Jack. "Why, you're some elegant! How'd ye get the lift?"

The leading merchant, philanthropist, financier and exponent of the higher success wheeled abruptly, stared at the questioner, turned red, then white, gripped his hands and moved forward as if to pass without a word, thought better of it, stopped and frowned and finally mopped his forehead with nervous agitation. Jack Lecon was all smiles and his manner as affable as a man who had called a bluff and knew he was stalking big game.

"Quite a bit of time since we met, Penchy," he continued, extending a hand, which Beverly ignored. "Some difference in us now, ain't there? You got the swell cut all right and the figger to carry it out, but I—why, I ain't good for much. I'm jest sick and down in luck."

The words trailed off into a whistle. Then, with a sudden change of base, Jack, aided with a little triumph in his voice:

"But I got my discharge all right, and you didn't."

There was a remarkable and pitiful transformation in Mr. Westlake. The skin wrinkled, and the complexion turned a sickly red, dotted with yellowish and purplish spots.

"I say, Jack—Mr. Lecon," he stammered when he could control his voice "what do you want—money?"

"Ain't no blasted aristocrat that I refuses it," leered Jack, with an ingratiating grin.

Mr. Westlake fumbled in his coat pockets and produced a roll of bills that caused poor Jack to gasp.

"Take this," said the merchant, extending a generous wad of the freshly minted green, "and—don't bother me again, Jack—Mr. Lecon. I mean—that is, if— Don't you want a ticket to the Pacific coast, where the climate is very agreeable at this season of the year? I'll furnish you with one."

But Jack Lecon was no quitter when on the easy trail of a victim. He was garrulous by turns and much addicted to the use of strong tonics. At such moments he tried to make love to Alice, Westlake's brave and devoted wife, and openly flouted his benefactor. The uneasy head which wore the crown of riches was bowed under the burden thus placed so suddenly upon his shoulders. But for Alice he would have quit and confessed all.

"I'll go away, my dear," he groaned in agony of spirit, "or I'll kill myself, no, kill 'em! He's the devil incarnate."

But Alice, clothed and cautioned him against rashness. Imagine the mortification of having a low down brute installing himself in your home, insulting your wife and making free with your money and servants and always holding the threat of an awful exposure over your head—a veritable sword of Damocles, but ten times keener of edge and suspended not by a thread, but by a tiny spider's web.

"No, we cannot go away," Alice said in a soft voice. "We must stay and bear our burden for the present. You have lived down your early disgrace and proved yourself a reputable man."

"But the law doesn't recognize that," bitterly complained the broken down capitalist. "If I escaped from prison before my time expired, I'm still a criminal in the eyes of the law. Oh, if I had been patient a little longer!"

Alice comforted him with words of caressing affection, but the iron had entered his soul, and he continued to cry out:

"To think this drunken brute should have his freedom without fear of capture or exposure! I'll kill the wretch if—"

"No, dear, you won't do any such thing—for my sake."

Jack's excesses became so disgusting in time that even sweet Alice's patience and endurance were sorely tried. Her faith in her sense of duty was showing signs of wavering when suddenly without warning Jack's skeleton rattled open the closet and fell sprawling on the floor.

The key was held by a quiet, thick-set man of dark complexion, who called one evening to interview Mr. Westlake in the quiet of his study. Alice was there, and hung over her husband as if to protect him.

"Mr. Westlake," announced the quiet stranger, "you have in your employ a man of the name of Jack Lecon, I believe?"

Beverly winced a little at the word "employ," and he was inclined to laugh at the irony of the thrust. Yes, he was in his employ, but a rather expensive employee. He nodded, with a smile, to indicate his comprehension.

"Well, sir," continued the stranger, "this man is a convict—escaped from the federal prison some months ago."

Beverly Westlake saw all kinds of pluck and white spots, and he glanced up to see if the electric lights had changed their colors. Incidentally he felt the strangulating constriction of his wife's arms around his neck. He realized that he was pale and that his heart had almost ceased to beat.

"There is nothing to fear, Mr. Westlake. The house is surrounded, and we will capture him without any outcry. He is a desperate character—killed his guard when he escaped—and we have made special plans to capture him without danger to you or your household. I merely called on you to prepare your wife for any struggle that may follow. You understand?"

Yes, Beverly understood, and Alice too. "Alice," he said slowly, "you had better retire to your room. I will go with—this man to find Jack."

Intuitively she caught his meaning. She hesitated but a moment and then kissed him as if to withdraw.

"I don't think we shall need your services," the officer said, with a confident air. "Our plans are all carefully laid, and by this time Jack Lecon should be a prisoner. I came here partly to engage your attention while my men secured him. I think now, consulting his watch, 'the struggle must be over. We will go and see.'"

They passed through the great hall in solemn procession and then turned to mount the broad stairs to Jack's room. He lived in comfort and luxury away from the servants as a man set apart for special favors.

But they did not ascend the stairs. A swift figure glided down the polished marble and intercepted them—a figure that halted but an instant and then would have passed on with insistent purpose. The officer, startled by the movement, turned hurriedly and asked:

"What is it, Sheldon? Anything wrong?"

The gliding figure came to a reluctant halt and replied respectfully:

"Yes, sir; he escaped and jumped out of the window. But Jansen and Holden must have him. They were below."

There was a hurried exit from the house, and Alice forgot her dignity and scant footgear. The moon was at its zenith outside, and the crisp, wintry air made the blood tingle. The frozen ground was as hard as rock, and little frost bulbs gathered on every tree and shrub.

A voice from out of the muffled silence of the night smote their ears as they turned a corner of the house.

"We have him, sir," it said calmly. "He jumped and fell on his head—hurt a little, I guess."

They gathered around a dark heap on the silver frosted ground where the twisted limbs of a man were sprawled like the four corners of a star. There was a queer likeness to the neck when the head was raised, and Alice covered her eyes and shuddered. If she divined the meaning of it she did not confess it even to herself. It was Jansen who pronounced the verdict.

"Neck broken, I guess," he said coolly. "Yes, sir, and dead as a doornail."

The leader of the men knelt over the prostrate form of Jack Lecon, and after a close examination he said, with finality in his voice:

"Yes, he's dead."

Turning toward the Westlakes, he said in way of explanation and apology: "I'm sorry we couldn't take him away without creating a scene. But I suppose now it must come out in the papers. The coroner must be summoned."

Alice drew a deep breath, and Beverly wiped the frost gathered on his mustache with his hand that trembled. His lips only mechanically muttered the commonplace word:

"You have our time, our effort, our—only your dirt—and I thank you."

They turned slowly and walked up the steps of the spacious piazza and entered their painful home. Their family skeleton was back in the closet and carefully nailed up and sealed.

Would it ever break out again?

NOTHING FOR US JUST YET

Boston and Maine is to Make Salem a Lively Place

Now the Boston and Maine railroad have decided to do a little at Salem in the way of spending several million dollars to improve transportation facilities and make that city one of the principal freight centres of New England.

Salem, on account of its location, has long been recognized as an ideal place for an important freight terminal to relieve Boston of its continual state of congestion. It is understood that the recent conference between President Tuttle and a committee representing the Essex county and Merrimack Valley boards of trade, at which much stress was laid upon the poor freight service which was being served to them, had a good deal to do with starting the railroad in this direction.

For many years all freight from the northeastern section of New England for Western points has been handled through Boston, the Boston and Maine taking care of all the charges up to Boston, also the teaming charge from one station to the other, in the computation of the through rate from shipping point to destination.

The Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company and the Philadelphia Coal company many years ago recognized the important situation of Salem in regard to transportation facilities, both on land and water, and constructed large coal pockets there. During the last year the combined shipments from these two concerns amounted to 500,000,000 pounds, which amount is likely to be doubled in a very few years, as the Philadelphia and Reading company has acquired land and is at work on plans to make this city the distributing point for New England as it is obliged to give up the present pockets at Mystic Wharf, Boston, inside of three years.

LOCAL OBSERVATIONS

Nothing has caused any more talk in this city for years than the act of Morris C. Foye in displaying a placard in his window a few days ago. The colonel only exhibited a short time and The Herald man failed to get a peep at it. Here is what it contained:

"Mr. Mayor. How about it? $50,000 in bonds to repair streets."

"$10,000 to remodel old high school building, for a city hall and police station."

"Present city hall remodeled for a central fire station."

"Does this mean a $20 tax rate?"

Just where the colonel got his tip from is a mystery, but it is hinted that a "Welch Rabbit" was the real cause.

Mayor Adams said last night that it is not his plan to establish a central fire headquarters in the old city hall. He would sell the city hall and also the school headquarters building, and with the money would erect a suitable building for the fire department. Mayor Adams said that he did not know of any move to issue $50,000 of bonds for street improvement.

The thing has caused a good deal of sport and the cat pots have had something for amusement.

The car stove figured in the burning of an Atlantic Shore Line car at Cape Porpoise on Saturday evening, but the fire in the stove didn't do it. The claim is made that the fire was due to the stove getting in a short electric circuit. Nobody was hurt on that occasion. It is also true that there was no fire when a car plunged off a bridge in Kittery, some months ago. Nevertheless, the laws of Maine, which permit this antiquated and dangerous method of car heating, ought to be brought up to date. The safety of the passengers should be made as certain as possible.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer will find his scheme to employ the men aboard the war ships at navy yards, when the ships are at the yard, a failure. It has been tried and the men will not stand it. The Boston Advertiser makes the following comment: "Navy yards, and the civilians employed therein, will be interested in the plan engaging the consideration of Secretary Meyer, with the purpose of cutting down the expense bill for vessel repairs, the work now done by civilian employees at the yards. His plan is a simple one, on the surface, consisting merely in having this work done, so far as possible, by the enlisted men, either in idle moments ashore or when stationed at the navy yards, using civilian labor only for assistance as necessary. He points out the large number of practically trained men in the naval service, many of them good mechanics. He intends to make a careful investigation of the possibilities. It may be that he will be discouraged by those who find it difficult under existing conditions to obtain a sufficient number of enlistments properly to man the vessels of the navy. It is not certain that the prospect of being obliged to do extra work such as the plan suggests will attract men to enlist. Furthermore, the civilian workers threatened with loss may have objections which will find effective voice. The plan is beset with difficulties of a practical nature."

Hon. Sherman E. Burroughs of Manchester was among the lawyers present at the United States court today. Burroughs had a narrow escape from getting into the contest for governor, in fact, it is conceded that he could have had the nomination, but he preferred to attend to his own business. All his friends believe he is on the square and is not a "faker," and if he had given the word both factions of the party would have been for him.

A. S. L. CAR BURNED

Trolley Pole Hit Smokestack and Got Bad Short Circuit

One of the passenger cars of the Atlantic Shore Line railroad company was burned to the trucks shortly after 9:15 o'clock Saturday night at Cape Porpoise pier station and that there was a no more serious result is one of the fortunate features. There were no passengers on the car when the flames shot forth and but one of the cars crew and this worker was unable to cope with the conditions created by the fire. A short circuit is said to have been the cause of the accident.

The excitement occurred as the 9:15 car was preparing to leave the Cape Porpoise pier, the trolley pole dropping in such a way as to hit the smokestack of the stove used in heating the car. Immediately there was a blinding flash and in a very few seconds the car was in a sheet of flames. The one man with the car found it impossible to quench the flames, so the car burned to the trucks. The car was one of the best the company owned, being a Brill semi-convertible with a baggage compartment and capable of a speed of 50 miles an hour. No blame is attached to any one because of the accident.
